

Green Toys

There was a toy fair. It was in Germany. The idea was "Toys Go Green." There were many toys there.

Toymakers want kids to think about energy. They want kids to know where it comes from. Green toys can teach this.

What are some green toys? There are toy cars. They run on water. There are also dollhouses. Some have wind turbines. They show how wind can make power.

Stacy Lu is a parent. She likes these toys because they teach kids about energy.

But these toys cost a lot. They cost more than other toys. That is because it costs more to make them. But people want them. So, they pay more for them.

Robert von Goeben started a company. It makes green toys because many people want environmentally friendly toys. They also want safe toys. Parents care about what goes into toys.
